

True Love has been preserved in many places.

Session nr 17 of 17 September 2019 – Original Dutch- English translation done by Lisa.

Comments Wivine :

The large international group of Mezzaverde has been divided into small groups that have been doing group meditations together since end 2018. In these small groups there are now 10 people who are able to work in the 3rd dimension with the Energy of their God Fragment .

+/- two months ago the small groups with minimum two people who were able to work with the Energy of their God Fragment were invited to organize themselves "bilocation's" in countries or regions towards which they were guided. Each individual in the group had to organize alone a bilocation under celestial guidance in order to learn to receive live instructions via their meditations about the country and the gathering places.

On one hand, it is a beautiful exercise to learn to distinguish what comes from the Celestials and what comes from one's own mind. On the other hand, these bilocation exercises, done in the utmost discretion and for the sole purpose of "serving" and "learning", help them to endure more and more heavy spiritual energies, to transform their physical bodies (especially the nervous system) and to elevate their human mind to the level of the spiritual mind of their Thought Adjuster, through the creation of the morontia mind of their soul.

The preparation of such a bilocation is done in three phases:

- 1) Asking for spiritual guidance to choose the country or region.
- 2) Study the history of the country or region in order to understand their problems and realize this way that we are all brothers and sisters - that we are all sons and daughters of God on the way. That there are no internal differences between peoples. God lives in the hearts of all of us: men, women and children. He loves us all the same way. When we know Him and listen to Him, He will learn us to love others the same way.

3) Receiving the meeting places during bilocation.

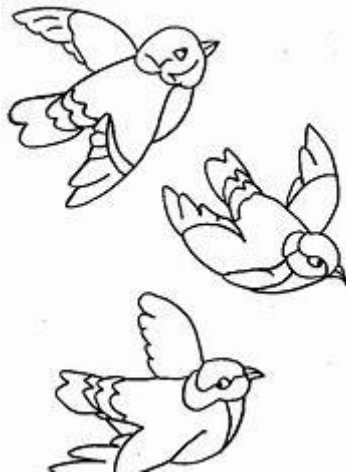

4) Make a report of what is experienced and felt during the bilocation in all honesty. It is not because we have no memory of what happened that there is not the most important : the action, the living experience, the awareness that makes the soul grow as well as the Supreme Being. Our Cosmic responsibility as cosmic citizens who are aware that the growth of God the Supreme goes together with our own soul growth. For this you need - the living experience, the awareness and actions to implement.

Having that sense of well-being in your heart that comes from knowing that you've helped.

There are now 6 bilocation's that have been organized by 6 people from two groups. A third group will start from two individuals and others will follow. All I do is gathering the reports and the country they choose before starting so that a group does not choose a country already done. Just a temporary safety net.

Little by little, the birds leave the nest in clusters.

Malaysia-Singapore-Brunei Bilocation - Sunday September, 15th 2019.

Completely and independently organized by Marco.

Over the past half century, poverty in the world has been reduced at a spectacularly fast pace. The decrease is largely due to Asia. Many Asians who were born into a poor society have their old age in a modern society. Much has been written about the development of Asia in recent years.

If the Asians work so hard, why did that result so little in earlier centuries? Why did the development of Asia begin in isolated Japan? Why did it take so long before other Asian countries followed? And why are the great civilizations of Asia: China and India, such late comers on the scene?

One of the main reasons is that in the colonial era, work was not really rewarded. A change took place in the 1950s and 60s. A more modern society resulted in a new policy of economic freedom and stability. The biggest factor was the emancipation of the countryside, the farming population.

Massive investments in agriculture (large farming population) have helped to reduce poverty in rural areas (subsidies, credits, connection to the market). This growth in agriculture made also growth possible in other economic areas. Here follows the emergence of a growing group of middle classes, which in turn results in a louder call for further democratization. They want greater freedom and participation.

Yet many still live in poverty and a number of countries are sighing under the yoke of dictatorship. Moreover, in the last decade we see increasing intolerance for minorities and the return of medieval laws, the reintroduction of the death penalty and the execution of corporal punishment. We also see an increasing influence from China, which makes various countries in the region dependent on its own interests through major investments.

Southeast Asia, a large collection of republics, kingdoms and sultanates. A subtropical area with many islands, volcanic activity and a rapidly increasing population and decrease in the originally present rainforest.

The mishmash of the various religions in this region, their rise, prosperity and decline, is beautifully reflected in this You Tube video from around 100 BC to the present:

In this bilocation we treat the Sultanate of Brunei, Malaysia with the areas on the island of Borneo: the Malaysian states of Sarawak and Sabah. And the city state of Singapore.

Brunei

In the small sultanate of Brunei, sufficient wealth is obtained from petroleum. Because of the presence of oil, Brunei is one of the richest countries in the world. The people are not rich, but not poor either. They do not pay taxes, receive free education and medical care, but there are no elections or political parties.

The sultan, one of the richest people on this planet, is an absolute sovereign. He is also prime minister, minister of defense and finance, head of Islam, supreme commander of the armed forces. The oil dollars disappear into the pockets of the sultan and his eccentric family, who trade in scandals and are inviolable and infallible by law.

Brunei is not Dubai or Monaco. The capital consists of sober, impoverished buildings, and slums in the shadow of the golden domes of the mosques and palaces that seem to come from a fairy tale of a Thousand and One Nights.

In Brunei, sharia laws apply since 2014. The sultan wanted to introduce a strict form of the Islamic legal system in three phases, with increasingly severe penalties. The new sections of Sharia law entered into force in April 2019.

Malaysia

The Federation of Malaysia is a constitutional monarchy, officially the Supreme Ruler or Yang di-Pertuan Agong, who is usually called the king. The Kings of Malaysia are chosen for five-year terms from the nine sultans of the states of the Malaysian peninsula. The cabinet has the executive power. It is led by the prime minister. Thanks to the presence of tin and the production of rubber, (Western) Malaysia underwent an impressive economic development after the Second World War.

The capital city of Malaysia is Kuala Lumpur. Many people say that the city of Malacca laid the foundation for today's Malaysia. That is because Malacca was one of the largest trading gates in Southeast Asia at the time the Sultans reigned here. Trade between China, India and Siam (formerly Thailand) happened here on a daily basis.

Sarawak

Sarawak is the largest exporter of tropical hardwood in the world and this results in a large deforestation. The vast forests make way for the highly profitable palm oil plantations. A nice overview is given by the link below about global deforestation.

You can zoom in on the various areas and various layers give a visual picture of the ongoing deforestations.

Sabah

In 1970, Sabah was one of the richest states in Malaysia, only Selangor (to which Kuala Lumpur belonged then) had a higher GDP. Today, despite its natural resources, Sabah is one of the poorest states in Malaysia. Sabah is a base for jihadist terror organizations.

Singapore

Singapore is a parliamentary republic, but in practice politics is dominated by the People's Action Party (PAP). According to outsiders, the form of state has in practice more the character of authoritarianism than of democracy. Unlike most authoritarian regimes, Singapore has a successful, low-corruption and transparent market economy. The president is elected directly, the parliament through a district system.

Places to gather during the bilocation:

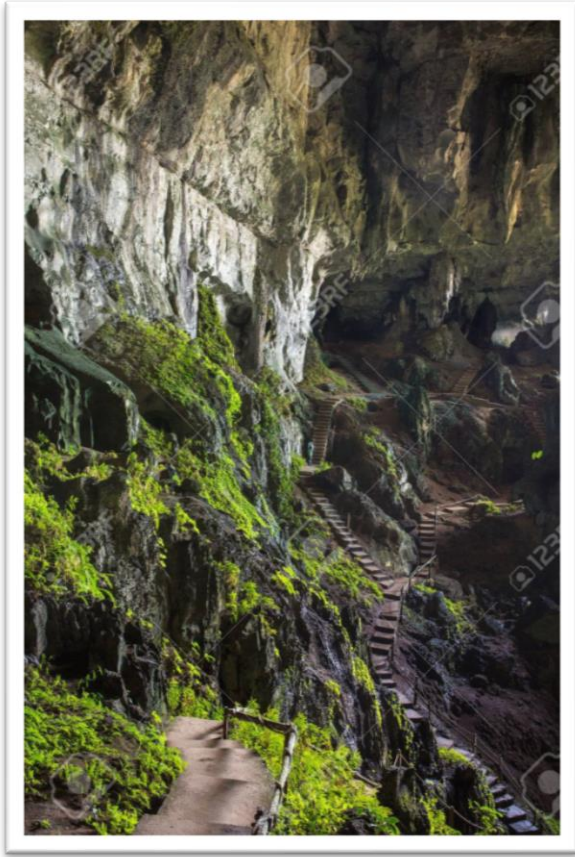

We gather at the Al-Muhtadee Billah mosque in the kampong Ayer in Brunei

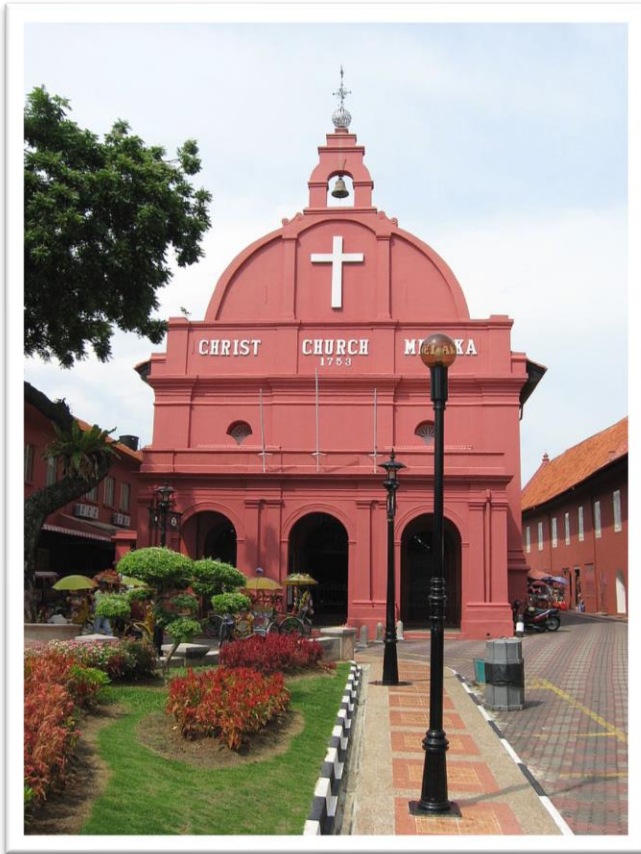

Brunei : Al-Muhtadee Billah moskee - kampong Ayer

Malaysia : The Parish of St Michael and All Angels – Sandakan; Sabah;

Malaysia : Caves Gua Pari Pari – Sarawak;

Malaysia : Christ church – Malakka;

Singapore : Church of the Holy Family –

REPORT EXPERIENCIES DURING BILOCATION.

Mary-Jo: Time: 30min

It took a long time for me to arrive at my destination. And even then I flew over the area for a long time, while I felt that I was being guided from home. No images until I suddenly saw a group of people laying white cloths. It was a kind of ritual in which the cloths were wet in the water and then spread on the land.

I wondered what it meant and then got an explanation:

“Like with some Maya’s, there are several people who still know from their heart and live according God’s plan. They are spread over all continents and live in many areas where we will send you. You will connect with each other which will benefit the world. People in connectedness can bring forth great things; by radiating love, heal earth and nature from tyranny, and clean up evil. Many beautiful things will happen.

There are many places in the world where “true love” has been preserved and you will be connected with each other through your heart during your “bilocation’s” and via the created “Light Anchors”.”

Then I went in peaceful silence for a few minutes and it was over.

Lisa:Duration: 31 minutes

After reading the prayer I moved to Brunei. During the journey that took quite a long time over land and water I felt a constant pressure and irritation between the eyebrows, on the nose bridge and at the inner corners of the eyes.

In Brunei I already saw Marco standing by and Mary-Jo also appeared quickly. In my opinion, we stood alongside the water with our Heavenly Family. We all started to shine and the water seemed to rise in a large column. There was a clear and bright light.

Then we were in Sarawak at the Gua Pari Pari. This had gone so fast, I had the feeling we were not ready at the previous place and I even wanted to go back.

It was made clear to me that it was really done there and I had to focus on this other place. This was before the entrance to the caves and after standing there for a while large dust clouds came out of the caves. I think more has been done there, but I did not see it.

Then we moved again. I wondered where and heard : "Sandakan". Here we stood in a kind of long line from one side of the city to the other with our face to the east coast. We also started to shine there and it was as if a kind of tsunami of light swirled through and over the city up to the coast towards the Philippines. As if the city was cleaned and exposed in this way.

From above I was shown that the previous three places were connected.

Then we went to Singapore. The only thing I experienced there was an enormous warm light that spread further and further.

I wondered if we would go to Malacca also, but that wasn't necessary. The light that we had created in Singapore would spread throughout the entire peninsula.

After coming out of meditation, I still felt energy around my head for a while.

Marco: Duration: 45 minutes.

It took a while before we started. There was pressure on the bottom of my forehead, just like there was a heavy pressure on my nose bridge/bottom and at the eye sockets.

In the beginning I saw 2 images. The first image was a Synagogue with a minaret. The second the skyline of a city. After that, I felt into deep meditation.

After meditation I still had pressure on my forehead for a while.

END.
